

Quality Policy

The legal requirement for quality systems was introduced by Directive 2010/84/EU amending Directive 2001/83/EC and Regulation (EU) No 1235/2010 amending Regulation (EC) No 726/2005 to strengthen pharmacovigilance in the EU.

While there has to be compliance with these legal requirements, the implementation of a quality system should be adapted to the respective organisation.

We are committed to successful collaboration to ensure our customers and clients are educated in IntuVigilance's quality expectations, ensure GxP regulations are met, best practices are incorporated and that robust and effective quality processes are developed, followed and constantly improved.

IntuVigilance has developed a suite of SOPs to define and maintain their Quality System.

IntuVigilance will carry out their working practices in line with these SOPs or those of their clients, whichever is applicable, to ensure compliance with the legal requirements detailed above.
